

I heard about ONI about 4 years ago in October, when I first moved into Randy house. Before that, I wanted a place of my own, and one day at Avita, which is a resource for individuals experiencing the disabling effects of mental illness and developmental disabilities, I learned about a place called Randy's house. I was not sure about the place at first, but now I really like it. I have brothers for the first time in my life, and now I am living in Teri's house, where it's a more independent place than Randy's house. I met the coolest guy ever, and his name is La Roy Deleon. That's my story and I thank god for Our Neighbor every day.
